BUILDING TOMORROW'S JOBS

See what both the public and private sector can do right now to help businesses realize economic and ecological benefits of producing more with less.

Interested in creating and sustaining jobs in our region? Learn from experts who will share their insight on development practices that help businesses thrive, while making efficient use of financial and natural resources.

Tracy Casavant is a leader in sustainable industrial and commercial development at both small and large scales. She specializes in eco-industrial development that enables businesses and governments to achieve mutual benefits. Tracy is president of Eco-Industrial Solutions Ltd in Vancouver, British Columbia.

Bert Gregory is a renowned expert in the development of resource-efficient structures and communities, and serves as a national leader, speaker and advocate for sustainable building and urbanism. Bert is the president and CEO of Seattle-based sustainable design firm, Mithun.

Andrew Mangan is co-founder and executive director of the United States Business Council for Sustainable Development, an association of businesses formed to create and deliver sustainable development projects. His work results in projects that generate economic returns while improving local communities and the environment -- the triple bottom line.
