THE FUTURE OF WORKSOURCE

"Without continual growth and progress, such words as improvement, achievement, and success have no meaning." - Benjamin Franklin

MARCH & APRIL 2014

3/19/14	@ Florence, OR
3/20/14	@ Salem, OR
4/3/14	@ Wilsonville, OR

The state's workforce system is undergoing a redesign, and the Oregon Employment Department has new leadership. Along with a shifting economy, this provides a unique opportunity to re-examine how workforce services are provided to employers and job seekers.

Local workforce investment boards, in partnership with the Oregon Employment Department, are hosting a set of STRATEGY SESSIONS around the state to:

- Refine how WorkSource services (the state's workforce system) can maximize its value to employers
- Align resources where they are needed most and understand how those needs vary from region to region
- Enhance the responsiveness and accountability of state-support workforce services.

These discussions are about looking ahead - what WorkSource should do given future trends. The input from these sessions will help WorkSource Centers reach the next level of implementation, and help local workforce boards and the Oregon Employment Department make decisions on how services and resources should be allocated in the future.
